DETAILED ACTION

The examiner acknowledges a submission of the amendment filed on 6/16/2006.

The amendments to claims 1, 3, 5, & 19 are accepted.

Response to Arguments

The examiner thanks the applicant for pointing out the error in which claims 19 and 20 were erroneously listed under the 103 rejection in the final office action. Claims 19 and 20 were not rejected under 103 but were correctly interpreted by the applicant to be objected to for minor errors and were correctly indicated as containing allowable subject matter.

The previously made 103 rejection of claims 1-9 have been withdrawn in view of the amendments to claims 1 & 3.

The previously made objections to claims 19 & 20 have been withdrawn in view of the amendments to those claims.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-20 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

Art Unit: 2836

Claims 5-7, & 10-20 are allowable for reasons set forth in the previous office action.

Prior art fails to teach a vehicle locking system which comprises a plurality of sensors for sensing the opening and closing of the vehicle door and a memory for storing this information along with the delay between the opening and closing and a timer which counts down from a time limit set in response to the history of the stored signals in which to lock the vehicle doors. Therefore, claims 1-9 are allowable.
